DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Schick, U. S. Patent 1,683,990. Schick teaches a mechanical display apparatus comprising a casing 1, a plurality of parallel display elements 3 rotatably mounted within the casing, a weight or mass 14 operatively coupled to the display element such that the display element is actuated by an inertia controlled weight. The mechanism comprises ratchet 10, pawl 11 and lever 12 which is pivotally mounted bracket 13 and weight 14.

With respect to claim 7, Schick teaches a base 16 pivotally mounted to the casing. (See figures 1 and 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 2, 3, and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schick.

With respect to claim 2, Schick teaches the display device is polygonal in end elevation. (See lines 59-63). Since the applicant does not disclose that display devices with a triangular cross section solves any stated problem or is for any particular purpose, it appears that constructing the polygonal cross section of the display element having any suitable number of side as taught by Schick would perform equally well.

With respect to claims 3, Schick teaches a plurality of gears 7-9 connecting one end of the display element such that rotation of one display element causes rotation of the other elements.

5. Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schick in view of Cohen, U. S. Patent 4,449,167.

With respect to claim 8, Schick teaches the base 16 of the casing bolted to the interior of the vehicle. (See figures 1 and 2). Cohen teaches an adjustable vehicle safety light secured to the interior of a vehicle using doubled side adhesive tape 40. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time this invention was made to construct the display device taught by Schick secured to the inside of a vehicle using double side tape as taught by Cohen to provide a means to secure the device with the vehicle without permanently damaging the vehicle by drilling a hole.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 4-6 and 9 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The following U. S. Patents are cited to show inertia mounted display devices Taplin – 1,875,676, Pillsbury – 2,753,830, Duff – 2,798,321, Warren – 2,828,562, Radgens – 3,513,800, Zadig – 1,356,585, and Sung – 6,182,599.
